Fun facts

- The original building dates to the early 1530s (Tudor period) and added to over time
- The house is one of the oldest domestic buildings in the Peak District
- You can see the wattle and daub filling in the walls
- The larger windows were added to during the Jacobean period (1603-1625)
- There are ritual burn marks on the doorframe in the Parlour – used to protect the building from fire / lightning
- Also on the Parlour doorframe is the VV mark – Virgin of Virgins (Blessed Virgin Mary), for protection
- The building was used by the Tithe Assessor, who collected Tithes and rent for the local landowner
- In the 1770s, Sir Richard Arkwright built a Mill in Bakewell – the earliest River-side Mill of its type; he split up the building into cottages for his Mill workers
- The cottages were in use right through the Victorian period and then mid 20thC

Finding your way around

The whole museum is available for vigils, please note the office is out of bounds (marked 'Private' on the plan of the site, below). The ground floor is wheelchair accessible.

The communal base for your event is the Houseplace, which is wheelchair accessible. Refreshments may be consumed here – thank you for keeping it tidy.

The accessible toilet is located in the courtyard.
